

Ability:

1 Putting themselves together by replacing their body by slotting in someone else's body parts

2 being able to understand every language in existence but not be able to speak it because your human vocal cords could only allow you to speak limited amount of languages

3 only being able to speak like a voice inside people's heads but you live at the 17th century and people believe in witch craft

4 x-ray vision but you can't overuse it because then you'll get blind and not be able to see at all because of the radiation

5 feeling immense pain would make you unable to be phased by the same or less amount of pain that something would try to inflict upon you if you chose to use your power

6 physical trauma would make you just as strong as the amount of strength it would take to damage you by that amount in the body part you'd be hit in but you'd feel twice the amount of pain you'd otherwise feel ( actually there's an easy way to fix this, just take pain killers while in battle and have your school bully beat the hell out of you... actually I'm wondering has anyone used pain killers in fighting to push their body to fight more easily? )

7 being depressed negative and sad would make you much smarter and clever but if you lost your negative feelings you'd become dumber and less creative

So you'd have to somehow not become suicidal but also not become the next Joy from the start of inside out

8 being able to augment the sounds coming out of stuff including the hitting of two objects, frequency (but any low frequency sound would hurt your head like you were banging a hammer against it) and the strength of that sound

9 be able to sleep at any time instantly but once your power would be used you'd fall unconscious the exact time you used your power in no matter where you'd be for 2 months

10 be able to make a clone of yourself but have to double your weight in order to clone yourself and that clone would be the exact same you as the you you tried to clone from before doubling your weight

So if you wanted to clone yourself as a 15 year old and doubled your mass as a 20 year old you'd pop out your 15 year old self

11 constantly hurt your eyes especially while looking at the sun or a screen but never need to sleep in your entire life and be energetic all the time

12 be able to control emotions like if you wanted to be genuinely afraid you'd be able to make yourself, if you wanted to calm down Billy you'd be able to do that and if you wanted to get so much adrenaline from anger that your muscles would burst you'd also be able to do that but then they'd be stuck with that emotion for 5 hours including you